Executive Officer

Anisa Aven founded TurnKey Coaching Solutions because of her desire to see the benefits of professional and personal coaching experienced by more than just C-level executives and the wealthy. "Coaching is having a profound impact on every life and business it touches. It's incredibly rewarding to know that through TurnKey the opportunity to experience the life-changing benefits of coaching is both easily accessible and affordable. And, if that weren't reason enough to bounce out of bed every morning, I'm proud to say that we are supporting many talented coaches in fulfilling their desire for regular and dependable income. A part of my life purpose and passion has been fulfilled by TurnKey's success." - Anisa Aven

Entrepreneur

Anisa has been an entrepreneur from the tender age of 10 when she opened her first business—a snack bar—in her father’s antique auction house. She has had many adventures in the world of business, including marketing, sales, talent management and even children’s videos. She founded Classic Talent Management in 1989, launched a small business consulting company in 1992, created NetVision Marketing in 2000, participated in the rapid expansion of the new entry True.com in 2004, and then later that year launched TurnKey Coaching Solutions. She continues to enjoy coaching and consulting a select group of private clients as well as her management responsibilities for TurnKey.

On a Personal Note

Anisa’s favorite role is having the honor of being Parker and Ashlyn’s mother and partner to “her honey”, Quentin. Committed to her family, Anisa is able to run a company and still have time to coach their little league T-ball teams.

In pursuit of her personal passions, Anisa co-founded the only democratic, free school in Texas (the Brazos Valley Sudbury School) and considers herself an activist for children’s rights.

Anisa is an avid athlete who continues to compete and train in such endurance events as marathons and long distance biking. Her latest adventure was completing the Challenge Course in the MS150, a Multiple Sclerosis fundraising bike ride from Houston to Austin, Texas. The great outdoors calls Anisa and her family as they spend their recreational time boating, water skiing, biking, and traveling. And, just for fun, Anisa continues to attend more personal and professional growth seminars because as she puts it, “the growing never ends.”
